 Eige_verksemd: TASC use the dinner table, food and taste as a catalyst to enable in depth and critical conversations and to explore ideas within art works, exhibitions and concepts. By situating an art discussion around a dinner table, it creates a comfortable, non-threatening and inclusive environment for people to spend time, engage with and discuss the works. TASC events bring together people both inside and outside of the art world to sit round a table and talk together about the things that art can provoke.

Amber Ablett and Stacy Brafield began TASC in 2013; the collaboration took shape through a mutual interest in art, performance, conversation and food. Each happening takes a different form, we tailor the events to the needs of the discussion, idea or gallery.

Recently TASC has hosted events at ROOMARTSPACE and Vulpes Vulpes in London and at the Kunsthall and Entrée in Bergen.
 Planar_for_stipendet: We are looking to develop the documentation of our projects to extend the conversations provoked by TASC events.

We plan to use the stipend to create a website and online archive of past events and to begin the design of a TASC "cook book" where we use recipes, taste and food to explore ideas.

This will help us to market our project and bring a wider audience to the works.
